

INDIAN PREDICTIONS.—We are informed that the Indians living in the vicinity of Marysville, left their abodes a week or more ago, for the foothills, predicting an unprecedented overflow. They told the whites that the water would be higher than it has been for thirty years, and pointed high up on the trees and houses where it would come. The valley Indians have traditions that the water occasionally rises fifteen or twenty feet higher than it has been at any time since the country was settled by whites, and as they live in the open air, and watch closely all the weather indications, it is not improbable that they may have better means than the whites of anticipating a great storm.

Curious Discovery in Ireland.
 In the month of July last some ancient metal ornaments were found by a poor countryman. The circumstance attracted general attention throughout the country, and several parties expressed an anxiety to obtain the ornaments, which were of pure gold, and consisted of a crown and a collar.
 An intimation was even sent through the authorities, under the regulations of treature trove, demanding the ornaments, of course at their proper value. They have since been publicly exhibited in the collection of the Dublin Society, and much admired by those who relish antiquarian researches. The Messrs. Hynes offered the countryman a handsome douceur; but this point out where he found the relics, but this the wily native knowingly declined to do, no doubt expecting that other articles of value might be discovered in the same locality. He has, however, at length divulged the particulars. The man resided at a place called Skees, near the celebrated ruins of Clannacloise, on the brink of the Shannon.
 In the course of some agricultural operations, he removed a large flag which opened the passage to a spacious cavern, in which were found the crown and collar, together with some ancient bronze weapons and several utensils used for culinary purposes.
 The discoverer of this singular labyrinth kept it concealed from the knowledge of any one for a considerable length of time; but at length he has been induced to show it to a very few individuals under a promise of secrecy; and, as he is about to leave this country for Australia, he intends for a consideration to lead the way to this subterranean chamber, evidently the retreat of the ancient monarchs who reigned in the locality. The intricacies of this hidden apartment possess many singular vestiges of a defunct race. It war, no doubt, at once a fort and residence. The hard-pressed chieftain and his followers found in its recesses perfect security and concealment, for if any pursuers had the temerity to tread the fortunous windings of the entrance, certain destruction was sure to reach them ere they reached the apartment, several feet below the surface of what appears to be a limestone stratum. Among other relics of bygone days are ten elaborately ornamented shafts, of an octagonal form, and bearing long in-

Alaska in Louisiana.
 The St. Louis correspondent of the Democrat furnishes the following extract from the New Orleans Crescent, of November 23d:

Accounts were received yesterday that the naval expedition for Kentucky was progressing finely towards its destination, and that the great floating battery was going on finely. We desire to say any more of the movements of this expedition, as the infernal spies and Black Republican sympathizers will be sending off their bearers of dispatches. There was some talk last evening of the withdrawal of the 3d Mississippi regiment, Col. Denison, from the weshore, and of its embarkation for Columbus last evening. This leaves the remainder of Mississippi sound unprotected, though there is nothing of consequence for the pesime marauders to steal but a few chickens, pigs and cows. The villages offer nothing more to attract their attention.

The correspondent adds: Here is an admission that Louisianais is somewhat in the condition of Arkansas, and, like the latter, has its traitors to the South.
 A regular Union conspiracy was not long ago discovered in New Orleans, and many of the participants discovered and thrown into prison. One of the acts of these "conspirators" was to communicate intelligence to the blocking squadron, by sealing up dispatches to the Federal naval captains in bottles, and setting the bottles adrift in the current of the Mississippi. This plan, however, is made available by secessionists at Cairo, who performed the bottle feat for the benefit of Polk and Fillow at Columbus.
 The great floating battery spoken of by the Crescent is a huge dock, which the Confederates have partially placed with iron and mounted with a number of large cannon.
 It is to be towed up to Columbus, and there from part of the gun-boat squadron collected there under the command of the rebel Commodore Hollis for the defence of that place. The balance of the squadron, including the "ram" Manassas, is already there, excepting the gun-boat Tuscarora, which was burned on its passage up from New Orleans.
