

INDIAN HOSTILITIES.—A dispatch was received at Fort Kearny, from Cotton-wood Springs, Jan. 1st, stating that the Indians had taken possession of everything at the latter place, the mail station included. The whole country is said to be alarmed, and without weapons of defense. Immediately on receipt of the dispatch, Col. Miles, in command at Fort Kearny, ordered two companies of dragoons to start the next morning at daylight, to protect the citizens and keep the road open.

The Nevada Democrat

NUMBER 4176

NEVADA, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, JANUARY 22, 1861.

Indian Hostilities

Nevada Democrat.
 PUBLISHED TRI-WEEKLY,
 On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturdays
 BY I. J. ROYCE & CO.
 A. L. LOYD, A. P. CROSBY, G. I. LANMON,
 T. H. POLLE,
 JOHN L. FRENCH, HEAD AND FINE PRINTERS.
 No. 100 Main Street, Nevada.

City Business Cards.
 J. L. CALDWELL, Attorney and Counselor at Law.
 HILL & HUPP, Attorneys and Counselors at Law.
 McCOWELL & GARRETT, Attorneys and Counselors at Law.
 THOMAS P. HAWLEY, Attorney and Counselor at Law.
 DAVENBELDEN, Attorney and Counselor at Law.
 C. M. BATES, M. D., Physician and Surgeon.
 DR. R. M. HUNT, Physician and Surgeon.

Hotels and Restaurants.
FASHION RESTAURANT.
 CHAS. B. IRISH, Proprietor.
COMMERCIAL STREET, NEVADA.
 Having purchased the above Restaurant, I have moved to the Commercial Street, and the name of the place is now the Fashion Restaurant.
First Class Restaurant.
 The Table will be supplied with everything in the market, and more but good meals will be served. Meals furnished at all hours.
Game Supplies sent up to 1861, on the shortest notice. Meat, small houses.

UNITED STATES HOTEL.
 BRAD ST. LEWIS, NEVADA.
CHRIS'S BARKEEP, Proprietor.
 THE UNFURNISHED HAVE LIMITED AND I have opened the United States Hotel, and will continue to carry on the Hotel business, and will continue to have good meals and a comfortable stay.
HOTEL IN THE MOUNTAINS.
 The Rooms are well furnished and are furnished with the best of everything.
FIFTY CENTS.
 THE TABLE WILL BE SUPPLIED WITH ALL THE RESTAURANT FURNISHINGS.
NATIONAL EXCHANGE HOTEL.
 GEO. H. LANCASTER, Proprietor.
 THE EXPENSIVE WORLD BESETHINGLY and the traveling public, the table will be supplied with all the best of everything.
THOROUGHLY FIRE-PROOF.
 Having moved to the National Exchange Hotel, the table will be supplied with all the best of everything.
THE TABLE WILL BE SUPPLIED WITH ALL THE RESTAURANT FURNISHINGS.

Bankers and Assayers.
BIRDSEYE & CO., BANKERS.
 NUMBER 20 MAIN STREET, NEVADA.
 Purchase Gold Dust.
ADVANCES OF DUST FOR ASSAY.
 WE CONSIGN ALL THE U. S. MINT.
BANK OF SAVINGS CHECKS.
 On San Francisco, Sacramento, and Marysville.
First Class Exchange on New York.
 Nevada Jan. 10th 1861.

GEO. W. KIDD, BANKER.
 GRANITE SPRING, BRAD ST. NEVADA.
GOLD DUST purchased at the highest market value, and the same is sold at the lowest price.
C. W. MULFORD & CO., BANKERS.
 AT THE CORNER OF MAIN STREET, NEVADA.
GOLD DUST bought at the highest market value, and the same is sold at the lowest price.
NEVADA ASSAY OFFICE.
 BY JAMES T. OTT.
 NUMBER 20 MAIN STREET, NEVADA.
ASSAYING AND ANALYSIS.
 The Assay Office is now open, and the table will be supplied with all the best of everything.
ASSAYING AND ANALYSIS.
 The Assay Office is now open, and the table will be supplied with all the best of everything.

Nevada Democrat.
 INTERVIEW OF MINISTER HARRIS WITH THE TYCOON OF JAPAN.—A KANGAWA correspondent of the New York Tribune describes as follows, an audience which our visitor, Hon. Townsend Harris, had with the Emperor of Japan on the 20th of August.
 All the ceremonial marks of respect were paid him, the lack of which at the audience last year gave occasion of offense to all the foreign embassies. This was the first audience granted since that time. Mr. H. was occupied as such since his first, by a large and imposing retinue of Japanese officials. Arrived at the palace, the three gentlemen were ushered into the ante-room, where the two gentlemen, one wide walked, and the other followed through an adjoining apartment, in which were high public fountains and dignitaries attendant upon the imperial presence, to the third, or audience chamber.

At the remote end of this room the young Emperor sat in a chair—of Japanese construction, vermilion lacquered and gilded upon a dais, raised a foot and a half from the main floor. The room was covered with furniture, its floor covered with mats, and the walls with a handsome, gilt-fringed paper. Members of the Gorojo, or Council of State of the Emperor, were present in the ante-room. Approaching with salutations within a few mats' length of the imperial presence, Mr. H. delivered his address, appropriate to the occasion. The Emperor responded. Mr. H. again bowed and returned some courtesy accompanied him to his residence, and shortly after a messenger arrived from the palace, bearing a royal gift of coffee. Mr. H. was then invited to the palace, and to the other Minister's satisfaction, and on receiving an assurance, albeit inactive, to visit Mr. H. in a state dinner, the three gentlemen of three days' subsistence. The same week Minister Asoke had an audience, and this week the French Consul General has been in.

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

AN ELOQUENT LAWYER.
 Oliver H. Browning, of Quincy, Illinois, is one of the finest orators of the West that before a jury has, perhaps, no superior in the country. In the celebrated Bingham case, recently tried at Chicago, Browning was the leading counsel for the defendant, and a correspondent thus speaks of his effort on that occasion.
 Mr. Browning commenced his argument in the celebrated Burch divorce case. He stood at the Court House, a large portion of which was composed of judges. Mr. Browning is probably one of the most effective speakers in the West before a jury, and strongly resembles Abraham Lincoln in many respects. Before commencing his argument he removed his neck tie, and fastened it over his neck. On his return during his speech he would frequently throw back his coat from his neck and shoulders. At times he kept one hand in his pocket, making sweeping gestures with the other. Now he talked to the audience, and now, face to face, with a jury man. Again he would stand with a law book in his hand, pointing at him as he asked a question after question with rapid utterance. During the whole afternoon he carried them along irresistibly, and the flood of his eloquence, during the splendid burst of eloquence, which we all attend, he enlisted the entire sympathy of the audience. There was scarcely a dry eye. The Court, the jury, the counsel and spectators, were in tears, and many were sobbing. Strong men, unable to control their feelings, bowed their heads and wept. Mr. Church was deeply agitated and his face bowed his head and covered his face to conceal the fast flowing tears. Mr. Leckwith sat with his eyes closed, with tears, his fine features lit up with a smile of triumphant gratification. What a noble judge! The complaint were, doubtless, judged by his face, which was as blank to any one attempting to read it. It was one of the most solemn scenes I have ever witnessed in Court.
 Any one who has ever heard Browning in a criminal trial can well believe what is said of the effect of his speech in this case. It is not the first time he has caused a shower in a crowded court room. But the writer must have drawn entirely on his imagination to detect any resemblance—

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than

Journalism as a Profession.—The participation of all newspaper offices is taking in this—a college bred editor-apprentice is a business to break into his business, any man who ever tries it. He must be beginning at the end, instead of the beginning. He has more things to unlearn than