

From South Fork Eel River.—We learn from the mail carrier, that the Sprout boys, an attack on whom by Indians we noticed last week, are improving and will soon be entirely recovered. They have moved over to Armstrong's where a stockade is being erected to protect themselves from any further attacks by Indians. The troops sent out from Fort Humboldt were met just this side of South Fork.

Business Directory.

A. HOBBS PICTURE.
 Ben Fisher had finished his hard day's work,
 and he sat in the cottage door,
 His good wife knit at her side,
 And the moonlight dabbled on the floor,
 The moonlight danced on the cottage floor,
 He became more cheerful and bright,
 As when he and Kate, together used to be,
 Talked love in her author's light,
 Ben Fisher had never a pipe of clay,
 And now a slim streak he had,
 So he loved at home with his wife to stay,
 And they chatted right merrily,
 Right merrily chatted they sit, the while
 Her head slept on her breast;

While a chubby rogue, with a rosy smile,
 On his father's knee found rest,
 Ben told her how fast the potatoes grew,
 And the corn in the lower field;
 And the wheat on the hill had grown to seed,
 And promised a glorious yield;
 A glorious field in the harvest-time,
 And his orchard, swelling fair,
 His sheep and his stock were in their prime,
 Her home after good report,
 While the golden goose looked on the
 THE PROPRIETOR OF THE BAY HOTEL, would buy him a Sunday hat;
 That Jenny for Pa, saw her shirt made,
 And it was done, too, by the rule;
 And Ann was ahead of school,
 Ben slowly raised his tall wife's head
 Through his locks of grayish brown
