

INDIAN DEPRDATIONS.—Stephen Goff, Esq., of Mattole, informs us that the Indians are killing cattle in that valley. Last week four head of cattle were killed and several more wounded, but a little distance from the residence of the owner. The Indians were followed as soon as their rascality was discovered, and were found feasting upon the beef they had stolen, but for several of them it was their last earthly banquet.

The Indians about Yager and Van Duzen creeks continue to kill or drive off stock if left unguarded, and occasionally make a dash into the settlements, when the frontiersmen watch too closely their herds and ranches.

THE HUMBOLDT TIMES.

UREKA, HUMBOLDT COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 1861.

and streets Corner Front and G streets, Eureka. THESE SALOON HAVING BEEN OPENED to the public, where the watered-down will be pleased to receive the patronage of his friends and the public generally. His BAR will, at all times, be well supplied with the choicest WINES, LIQUORS and GI- GARS, to be purchased in the State. P. MCMAHON. 4-17	For I know the thoughts, the hopes, The wishes which the brilliant troops Those letters hurried to my side Were symbolized by the ink and seal. I opened one—my pulse gave quicker, My spirit felt my heart gave throb; I traced the lines, close, firm and clear, Telling how deeply, fondly dear, The being was for whom I loved take I knew the words, with such a tone, It told of life's increase of wealth Of five young babies, all milk-white, That Gyp and Debbie were "all right," That Midsummer would quickly come, And then for the holidays and home. I gave a gasp, half sob, half sigh, While memory's flag-ways filled my eye, And faded from my misty gaze My mother and my school-boy days. I looked upon another bark, Bold free, and dashing in its form; And then I saw the lee-shore strand, So near the famous of the storm That here the right ark from its hold, And sang its wondrous, wild and wild, Upon the rocks, we more to seek Its idyllic fall of life and joy, With letters from the sailor boy, Another sad another woe! I opened one by one I read: I gazed as though who may stand A friend to look upon the dead, Love, with its ardent tears, was there, Friendship, that promised to be true, Words that like summer light and air Filled my heart a world of bliss and cheer.	REMARKS I have the honor to inform the citizens of Eureka, and public generally, that he has approved a SALOON, with BARKER'S, in the building known as the "Exchange," on the corner of Front and G streets, Eureka. His Bar will be supplied with the choicest WINES, LIQUORS and GIgars, to be purchased in the State. P. MCMAHON. 4-17	of the whole people, is a sacred obligation which we owe to the people to establish firm- ness and order in the city of every individual to obey the established Govern- ment. All objections to the execution of laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to thwart or obstruct the laws, or to overthrow the Government, or to prevent the execution of the laws, or to obstruct the course of justice, or to obstruct the course of trade, or to obstruct the course of industry, or to obstruct the course of commerce, or to obstruct the course of agriculture, or to obstruct the course of any other lawful business, are prohibited by the laws of the United States. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a crime, and shall be liable to the penalties thereof. Approved March 3, 1861. J. M. McKim, Secretary.
of the whole people, is a sacred obligation which we owe to the people to establish firm- ness and order in the city of every individual to obey the established Govern- ment. All objections to the execution of laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to thwart or obstruct the laws, or to overthrow the Government, or to prevent the execution of the laws, or to obstruct the course of justice, or to obstruct the course of trade, or to obstruct the course of industry, or to obstruct the course of commerce, or to obstruct the course of agriculture, or to obstruct the course of any other lawful business, are prohibited by the laws of the United States. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a crime, and shall be liable to the penalties thereof. Approved March 3, 1861. J. M. McKim, Secretary.	of the whole people, is a sacred obligation which we owe to the people to establish firm- ness and order in the city of every individual to obey the established Govern- ment. All objections to the execution of laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to thwart or obstruct the laws, or to overthrow the Government, or to prevent the execution of the laws, or to obstruct the course of justice, or to obstruct the course of trade, or to obstruct the course of industry, or to obstruct the course of commerce, or to obstruct the course of agriculture, or to obstruct the course of any other lawful business, are prohibited by the laws of the United States. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a crime, and shall be liable to the penalties thereof. Approved March 3, 1861. J. M. McKim, Secretary.	of the whole people, is a sacred obligation which we owe to the people to establish firm- ness and order in the city of every individual to obey the established Govern- ment. All objections to the execution of laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to thwart or obstruct the laws, or to overthrow the Government, or to prevent the execution of the laws, or to obstruct the course of justice, or to obstruct the course of trade, or to obstruct the course of industry, or to obstruct the course of commerce, or to obstruct the course of agriculture, or to obstruct the course of any other lawful business, are prohibited by the laws of the United States. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a crime, and shall be liable to the penalties thereof. Approved March 3, 1861. J. M. McKim, Secretary.	of the whole people, is a sacred obligation which we owe to the people to establish firm- ness and order in the city of every individual to obey the established Govern- ment. All objections to the execution of laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to thwart or obstruct the laws, or to overthrow the Government, or to prevent the execution of the laws, or to obstruct the course of justice, or to obstruct the course of trade, or to obstruct the course of industry, or to obstruct the course of commerce, or to obstruct the course of agriculture, or to obstruct the course of any other lawful business, are prohibited by the laws of the United States. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a crime, and shall be liable to the penalties thereof. Approved March 3, 1861. J. M. McKim, Secretary.