

Humboldt Indian Affairs.

By arrival of Loop & Shafer's express, on Monday, we have the latest news, prepared and forwarded, in the following article:

"We are gratified to learn that the expedition against the Indians in Humboldt county is about to be brought to a successful termination. The Redwood Creek Indians have been conquered, and have surrendered. Three of them, about a week since, came down to Mad river, and were detained by lower Mad river Indians, until the volunteers could be apprised of the fact and take them prisoners. They informed General Kibbe that the main body—numbering some 150—have scattered, as their means of obtaining subsistence were gone, and that they were well nigh starved and tired of fighting; that many of their best warriors had been killed, and promised to go and bring them all in, if they could be assured they would not be hurt. Accordingly, they left camp with Capt. Messer on Thursday last for Redwood Creek, and went immediately in search of the hostiles, and succeeded in collecting about 60, and they are still coming in.

"On Sunday, Gen. Kibbe with six men went in search of the lower Redwood Indians, and returned this evening with five of their warriors, who promise to bring in their families and others—numbering about 30. On the day prior to the taking of the three prisoners referred to, Lieut. Winslett with twenty-five men was dispatched to Mad river, near the Blue slide, information having been received that some of the hostiles had gone up there. By a messenger just in, we learn that Lieut. W. had surprised and taken 23 prisoners and killed one buck belonging to the tribes who were being collected, and the hostile Mad river Indians. As soon as those and a few others can be collected all the Indians who live in and who have infested Humboldt county will have cleared out, and if the Superintendent of Indian Affairs will but do his duty, will be rid of them forever. From 75 to 100 warriors have been killed, and when the remaining prisoners have been shipped, the number sent to Reservations will amount to 400, and thus will have terminated a most efficient and useful expedition."
