

END OF THE WAR.—The usual bustle and confusion attending the disbanding of a volunteer company has been going on in about Union this week. Gen. Kibbe issues an order for the Company to disband at Big Bar, where they were mustered into service. Several of the company, however, who belong in this county, and others who do not wish to return to Trinity will be disbanded here on the same day that the company will disband at Big Bar.

Gen. Kibbe is confident that there will be no further disturbance, and in a card which he publishes in the Northern Californian, he requests that the citizens will forbear visiting any further punishment upon any Indians they may find, without just cause or provocation. Three hundred Indians have been taken prisoners and sent to a Reservation, and near one hundred have been killed.

We trust, and believe, that there will never be any more trouble from Indians in our county, unless those that have been removed should find their way back. To prevent this Gen. Kibbe intends to use his influence to have them removed to some Southern Reservation, when he goes below.

Nothing remains now, but for the Legislature to pay the expenses incurred in the expedition out of the State Treasury, and look to the General Government to have it refunded. The company have done all that men could do, and we expect the Legislature will act liberally and promptly with them.

The Mid Watch.
 I peered the clock in the dead of night,
 And the ev'ning cracks in the bay south,
 And I heard the salt breeze whistle lamp,
 On the wall of the black rock wall,
 Or the wailing cry—'All's well!
 To sail for the westward ship,
 And I thought of the night alone,
 In the years for ever flown;
 Of the friends in whose baby fellowship
 I had long ago,
 Till death separated them, with on earth,
 And they seem to rest below.
 I thought of the path ones who died
 With our knowledge, and in the wide
 Of those who left in the narrow path,
 Or of them who left in the wide
 While the grass grows under the bridge—
 And the trees in the distance grow.

The Senate Chamber.
 The general aspect of the new hall is bright and graceful. In shape and dimensions it is similar to the new Hall of Representatives, but to the eye appears more finely proportioned. The style and character of decoration are nearly the same in both houses, except that in the Senate the front of color is much more subdued. The area of the floor is 60 by 43 feet, and the ceiling is 20 feet high. The distance being occupied by a continuous gallery around the four sides of the apartment and capable of seating 100 persons. The inner roof or ceiling, of iron, is flat with deep panels, 21 of which are filled with green glass, having in the center of each pane a colored medallion representing

The Presidents and Vice Presidents's—The Presidents and Vice Presidents's rooms and the Committee Rooms were from the level of the Senate floor. All the desks, benches and chairs are finished, but the great number are incomplete. In consequence of the action of Congress in withholding supplies, the carpenters and painters are likewise in the small amount of work necessary for the progress of embellishment. All are laid with one and a half inch boards, and the walls are generally oak. The desks are seven feet long, and the benches are six feet long. The desks are covered with red cloth, and the walls are covered with red cloth. The desks are covered with red cloth, and the walls are covered with red cloth.
