

"Look to the Militia? Kibbe, Haven, and Chiles, ye heroes brave, be on the alert! Your country calls."—Golden Era.

Many people here would be glad to know what Gen. Kibbe has done to provoke the above miserable effort to ridicule? Within six months he has rendered more important service to the State than the Era people could, by publishing their journal fifty years. The Humboldt volunteers bear witness to his faithfulness, activity and kindness of heart. Depravity is required to wound the feelings of an honorable man who has discharged an important trust and returned from a hard campaign, expecting the meager reward of a little approbation. The editors of the Era should be ashamed.

WEAVERVILLE, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1859.

Mountain Traders | J. S. McClellan | P. McCallister | "Herran" | During the revolutionary war | British Gen. | INDIANS