

NOME LACKEE COAL MINE.—A coal mine has recently been discovered at the Nome Lackee Indian Reservation. The Red Bluffs Beacon thus describes the quality of the coal:

"It is of the bituminous class, and of the variety generally denominated "brown coal," and from the partial examination which we gave it, seems to be of a very excellent quality. When exposed to the light of the sun it appears in color of a brownish black. It breaks with a somewhat lamellated semi-lustrous fracture, and burns with a bright yellow flame, and the empyreumatic odor so characteristic in this variety. The specimen examined, was from the outcropping stratum, and is undoubtedly of an inferior quality to that which will be produced when the bed is fairly opened."

MOUNTAIN DEMOCRAT.

"OUR COUNTRY—Always Right, but Right or Wrong, Our Country."

VILLE, EL DORADO COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1858.

From the London Athenaeum.
ROYAL MARRIAGES IN ENGLAND.

Of the marriages of most of our Saxon princesses little is known save the record of the act. There was the "wedding" or betrothal on thousands of pounds of our present value—but nothing could move the Scot, save the lovely eyes of his gentle lady, and those could not open his pocket. Margaret's sister, Bentive, married John, Earl of Bretagne; but let

But some years later, and in the same month, August, Mary Stuart, in widow's weeds, stood at the same altar, with "that long lad," Lord Darnley, and their nuptials were all over between five and six o'clock—long before break-will of the people through their representatives in Parliament. In like manner the public purse was opened when the Princess Mary married her cousin, the Duke of Gloucester. But when, two years later, the Princess Eliza