None Lacker Coal Mine.—Some specimins from the coal mine recently discovered on the Nome Lacker Indian Reservation, have been exhibited at Red Bluffs. The Beacon says it is of the bituminous class, and of the variety generally denominated "brown coal?" and from the partial examination given it, seems to be of a very excellent quality. The specimen examined was from the ontoropping stratum, and is undoubtedly of an inferior quality to that which will be produced when the bed is fairly opened.
