

INDIAN TROUBLES IN TEHAMA.—The Red Bluff Independent relates the following:

A band of Indians, numbering over sixty about two weeks ago, made their appearance in the vicinity of Cow Creek, where they stole a horse, robbed a cabin of a gun and some money, and came down to West's ranch, about fourteen miles N. E. from here, where they stole two valuable team mules, belonging to Mr. Farrel, of this town, and worth about $600. At first they did not suppose that it was the work of Indians, but in their search for the mules they discovered Indian tracks, and met a company from Cow Creek in search of their horse; they all joined together and followed up the trail until they reached the rancharia on Mill Creek, about twenty miles from Red Bluff. The Indians discovered the party when about half a mile distant, and broke for the mountains; they, however, succeeded in killing two, and wounding some others. They found nearly all the mule flesh, along with part of two carcasses of beef. They captured the horse alive, after a hard run between a Cow Creek man and an Indian. The citizens living in this range of country have suffered severely from those Indians, and are determined to take the matter in their own hands. A meeting is to be held at Hazlerigg's store, on Bear Creek, on the 4th inst., to take into consideration the raising of a company for the purpose exterminating this band, or in some way break it up, to prevent further aggression. The Indians here spoken of are quite conversant with the English language, and have some good guns in their possession.

The CIVIL WAR—It is now time to inquire who is responsible for all this? Revolutionaries do not more backward. We must direct our attention to the dangers of the hour, shall this bold treason triumph and its arrogant leaders trample upon the flag and the Constitution of the country, or shall they, through the blood and terror of battle be put down? If the present Government be overthrown, what is to be established in its ruins? Doubtless the conquerors would dictate the form and the substance. Can the nation safely trust men with power, who for each slight cause, rebel against the mildest authorities? For our own part, laying aside every personal consideration, as unworthy a serious thought in a crisis of such moment, we say, emphatically, such men are not to be trusted, and their treason should be crushed to the earth with all the speed and force available. And yet, (such is the nature of rebellion,) in doing this act of justice, the good must suffer more than the wicked who lead them.
We do, however, firmly believe that if the whole force of the Government is at once directed against the rebels, the war will be ended in three months, peace restored to the South and the whole country, and that the outraged people of the Federal States will take of the hands of the Federal Government, the business of hanging the instigators and leaders of this treason. No reasonable man can believe, after carefully perusing the past three months' history of rebellion, that one-half of the people in the seceded States favor the movement. It has been in this way in all revolutions; the good, quiet and orderly citizen have been overcome by the few plotting, reckless and ambitious demagogues among them. The latter are alone responsible for the saddest catastrophe of the civil war which is progressing, we wish they alone could be made recipients of its ill.—[San Andreas Independent.]
