

THE Morning Call thinks this section of the State has been pretty effectually rid of Indians. We hope so, although reports are current that straggling bands of Indians have again made their appearance on the western border of this county. That the people do not feel secure from attack is evinced by the fact that only a few days since a gentleman who is engaged in digging a ditch from Hay Fork canon to the mineral lands in the valley, was here endeavoring to purchase arms for the entire gang of hands engaged on the work. The people do not believe that Indian troubles are at end.
