

INDIAN ATTACK.—On Thursday last, while Mr. McElroy, was going from Lost Camp to Flat creek, on his way to his bridge on Pitt river, a man in his employ, by the name of Wells, who was driving a yoke of cattle a few yards in the rear of the balance of the party, was shot at by Indians. Mr. McElroy's dog had three arrows shot into him. The man escaped after having fired his rifle (he believes with some effect) in the direction of the Savages.
