

Digger Festivities.—The Digger Indians of Shasta county recently held one of their annual dances near Bald Hills. The Shasta Courier says there were some five or six hundred of them present, including all the elite of the various Shasta tribes. The tin pans began to beat and the sticks to rattle at an early hour in the evening, and the dancing and howling continued during the night. An invited pale-face guest says that the whole affair passed off as merry as a marriage night.

The image is a high-contrast, black and white graphic. On the left, there is a circular illustration of a person, possibly a woman, holding a large, open fan or umbrella. The fan has a distinct radial pattern. To the right of this illustration, the word "Bull" is written in a large, bold, blackletter-style font. Below these elements, the text "SDAY EVENING, MAY 20, 1857." is printed in a smaller, bold, sans-serif font. The entire graphic is framed by horizontal lines above and below.
