

THE INDIAN TROUBLES IN TEHAMA.—The last number of the Gazette censures, in a mild manner, the late proceedings against the Indians in the northern portion of that county, and believes they were actuated to their late deeds of murder and incendiarism by a spirit of retaliation to revenge the wrongs suffered at the hands of the whites. No treaty, according to the Gazette, has ever been entered into between the government and the valley Indians. The article concludes:—
“They, as a matter of course, are fighting for what would be to us our hearthstones and our home; their lands and hunting grounds have been taken from them by the force of might, and no one has ever said that an equivalent would be rendered them which would satisfy them for the loss. What other resources have they had but to steal, and when their squaws and children were murdered by the brave company of men who recently went out to fight them, no other result could be expected than that the time would come when the innocent would suffer with the guilty.”
