

INDIAN TROUBLES IN GRASS VALLEY.—The Grass Valley Telegraph complains of Indian depredations in that vicinity, but says that they are committed by roving bands of Indians, and not by those in charge of the local agent at that place. Quite a number of cattle have been killed, and it was feared that the Whites would become so exasperated that innocent Indians would be made to suffer for the outrages.

THE HISTORY OF TIMES.

A wonderful stream is the River Time.

As it runs the realm of years.

With a faultless ryming and a musical rhyme.

And a broader sweep and a surge sublime.

And blends with the ocean of years.

How the waters are drifting like flakes of snow.

And the summer bits bold between.

On the year to the sheet—so they come and they go.

On the river's breast, with its ebb and flow.

As it glides in the shadow and sheen.

There is a wistful tale up this River Time.

Where the softest of airs are playing.

There lies, cloudless sky and a tropical climate.

And a song as sweet as a vesper chime.

And a youth in the robe of a day-dreaming.

And the name of this tale is the Long Ago.

And we cry our hearts three times.

There are bowers of beauty and bosoms of snow.

There are heaps of dust, and we leaved them so.

There are trinkets and tresses of hair.

There is a fragment of song that nobody sings.

And part of an infant's prayer.

The Frazar River Indians.

We copy the following article from the San Francisco Herald, concerning the "North-ern Indians," with whom persons going to Frazar river will have to come in contact. It will be found interesting, and may be relied upon:

We are under obligations to Mr. Harkness who has just returned from a mining tour on Frazar river, for the following interesting account of the Frazar river Indians. As these are every probability that a large emigration will leave this State for that region of country, whither we must necessarily come in contact with them, it will undoubtedly prove valuable. All that has been said relative to the difficulty of navigating the river itself, is corroborated by Mr. Harkness, who has been twice over it; and being a thorough seaman, is scarcely likely to be mistaken. The banks of that river where the stream divides the Cascade Mountains, are represented to be exceedingly high and precipitous, altogether impassible to scale in many places. Throughout its whole length, as may be conceived from the fact, that one month ago the waters were over sixty feet higher than their summer level, and rushing down with an impetuosity that would have defied the attempt of savers to go up stream in canoes. Mr. Harkness met about forty of these canoes in the river, which were averaging about four or five miles a day. Quite a number of persons had been drowned, but no names were learned. It was not uncommon for the crews of four or five canoes to associate together for defense and mutual assistance in case of necessity, and the camp fires presented a beautiful and romantic appearance at some points. The Indians are represented as very superior to the Sioux, Indians, commonly termed "Chinooks." They are large, muscular men; fond of athletic sports, of a lighter color than the southern tribes, and very brave and undaunted. Many of their women are represented as being quite handsome, with regular features, and even delicate hands and feet. The waters are very feckless

The People of the State of California represent.

Approved April 21, 1858.

Sec. 1. The swamp and overflowed lands in this State, to be reclaimed, to be known as the State of California reclamation fund, shall be sold at the rate of one dollar per acre, in number prescribed by this act, and the proceeds thereof, under this act, shall be paid into the treasury of this State, as state revenue, and shall be credited to the account of a swamp land fund, to be appropriated for the reclamation of said lands, as the Legislature may hereafter direct. Provided, that, if upon the survey of such lands, any portion of the same, or any other money arising therefrom, shall be paid into the treasury of the State, as other state revenue.

Sec. 2. Any person, who may be entitled by the laws of this State to become a citizen thereof wishing to purchase land under the provisions of this act, shall file an affidavit in the Surveyor's office of the country, in which the land sought to be purchased, or the larger portion thereof, is situated, that he has not entered any other land under the provisions of this act, or under the provisions of any act passed April twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and fifty-four, entitled, "an act to provide for the sale of the swamp and overflowed lands belonging to this State," which with the land sought to be purchased, shall exceed three hundred and twenty-five acres; and that he does not know of any legal equitable claim other than his own, in the land sought to be purchased; that such purchase is sought for the purpose of settlement, and reclamation by actual, and that he has not directly, nor indirectly, made any agreement or contract, in any way or manner, with any person, or persons, whatsoever, by which the title he may acquire from the government of this State should have, in whole or in part, to the
