—On Friday 12th inst. a man was killed by the Indians, in the pinery near Antelope Mills, about twenty-five miles east of Red Bluffs. The Indians are supposed to belong high up on Leather river. A party numbering about fifteen men, immediately went up from Red Bluffs in pursuit of the Indians, having tracked them from where the man was killed, and immediately attacked them. This happened about daylight on Monday morning. The Indians stood their ground, and some were armed with rifles. A good many Indians were killed, while two white men were wounded, though not mortally. About fifty more citizens were prepared to start on Wednesday, for the purpose of having another fight.
