

The Home Record.

THE LATE MURDER ON LOWER TRINITY.—Corporal Underwood, of Capt. Ousley's command, sends us the following statement in relation to the late tragedy near the mouth of New river: On the 29th ult. an Indian brought word to Hoopa that Mrs. Weaver and a man living with her near the mouth of New river, had been murdered and her house burned by Indians. The Corporal, with fifteen men, was ordered to proceed to the designated location and ascertain the facts. Everything was found as reported, except that the woman bore evidence of having been burned to death—nothing but the skeleton remaining. He thinks the deed must have been committed at least two weeks before their arrival. The barrels of a rifle, shot gun and revolver were found in the ruins. No trace of the man said to have been living with her could be found. The barn was not burned, and some thirty head of cattle in a field near by were left undisturbed. The soldiers report that other places along the river are all right—not even the grain destroyed. There is something mysterious about this thing. What became of the man?

Weekly Trinity Journal

A Family Newspaper, Independent in Politics, and Devoted to the Advancement of Home Interests.

WEAVERVILLE, CALIFORNIA, AUGUST 8, 1863.

ESTABLISHED 1760.
ORILLARD.

WIGHTMAN & HARDIE,
—SUCCESSORS TO—

Weekly Trinity Journal.

Letter from Santa Cruz.

SANTA CRUZ, CAL., July 24, 1863.
When you last heard from

Pure

Oh! if we face a
But telling words