

VOLUNTEER COMPANY.—The muster roll will be opened to-day for a company of mounted riflemen, to guard life and property in this county. We hope to see it immediately filled up with the right kind of material, of which there is no lack in the county. The pay, some may object is not sufficient to fully compensate men who have business of their own to attend to. This is so, if reference is had to the pay direct; and if that consideration only should prompt action, it is not probable that the ranks of the company will be filled up very rapidly. The pay, however, is more than sufficient to defray the expenses of the expedition, and is as much as the law guarantees to any State troops. For additional compensation those who join the company must depend upon a voluntary fund to be contributed by our citizens, and appropriations hereafter made by the Legislature.

It is not to be supposed that unnecessary time will be consumed in the organization of the company when we have so long clamored for a volunteer force, and when each day reveals the imperative necessity for their active services against the murderous savages in the mountains.

If those who are suitable for the service and who can possibly leave home hesitate in the matter, allowing the ranks to be filled by inefficient men, or causing delay to the expedition, it will be strange indeed. We suggest to farmers, stockraisers, and business men, that they have some interest in this campaign, and it might be well for them to manifest it. Apathy on their part will be shared in some degree by those who are expected to do the fighting.

Where will be the birds that sing A hundred years to come? The towers that once were hoarsey piping A hundred years to come? The rocky hill The lofty brow, The heart that beats So gallantly now? Of wars that have long since Joy's pleasant snail and sorrow's sigh, A hundred years to come? What'll pass for gold this crowded street A hundred years to come? Who'll tread your church with willing feet, A hundred years to come? Pale trembling feet, And very young The rich, the poor, the fond and so, Where will the mighty millions be A hundred years to come? We all within our graves shall sleep A hundred years to come? No living soul for us will weep A hundred years to come. And other men Our heads shall fill A hundred years to come. Our wisest will say While other birds will sing as erst, As bright the sunshine as to-day, A hundred years to come.	(From the Times Extra, of Monday morning.) Great Battle in Missouri! Death of General Lyon, and Ben Mc- Callough's Confession. By the arrival of the overland com- muni- we have further particulars of the battle at Springfield. We copy from the Dispatches to the Alta of 25th ult. Of the news which we publish this morn- ing places a different phase altogether upon the fight at Springfield. Sigel there upon, who fought a glorious victory, though the odds were fearfully against him. He spent the night of the battle in the ene- my's camp, and next day fell back upon Springfield, the rebels nowhere showing themselves. He has fully made up for the Bull Run disaster. St. Louis, August 13.—The following official report of the fight near Spring- field, Mo., is forwarded by one of Gen. Lyon's Aids to General Fremont: Lyon, in three columns under himself, Sigel and Major Sturgis of the Cavalry, made an attack at 6:30 A. M. on the 10th August, at six miles southeast of Spring- field. The engagement was severe. Our loss in killed and wounded is 800. Gen. Lyon was killed to a charge at the head of his column. Our force numbered 8,000, including 1,000 Kansas Guards. Major rolls, taken from the eye of give their strength at 23,000—including Regiments from Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, with Texas Rangers and Cher- okee half-breeds. Their loss is supposed to be heavy—including Generals McCall- ough and Price. This statement is cor- roborated by prisoners. Their tents and baggage were destroyed in the action.
