

CAMP LINCOLN.—Last week while sojourning in Crescent City, we rode out to Camp Lincoln. The post is pleasantly located, in Elk valley, about five miles from town, is garrisoned by two companies of Col. Lippitt's regiment,—Capt. Stuart and Capt. O'Brien—the whole being under command of Major Curtis.

Hetty Marvin.
When the British and Tories attacked New London, Connecticut, in 1781, and set a price on the head of Gov. Griswold, the latter fled to the town of L... where his cousin, Mrs. Marvin, hid him for some days in a secluded farm house. But at length the subtle foe discovered his retreat and one sunny afternoon in May, he was routed from his hiding place with the news that a band of horsemen were approaching to capture him. His only chance of escape was to reach the mouth of a little creek which empti

"I couldn't tell a lie sir," was the tearful answer.
"Hoity," again began the smooth-tongued Tory, "you're a nice child. Everybody knows you are a girl of truth. What did your cousin say when you told him you would not tell a falsehood?"
"He said he shouldn't think I'd betray him to to his death."
"And when you promised not to tell which way he went, if you was killed for it?"
"Yes, sir."
"That was a brave promise."
