

More from the Indians—Two Indians
Killed and Two Soldiers Wounded.

As Capt. Miller of Company C, of the Mountaineers, with a detachment of sixteen men, was returning to Fort Gaston from Weaverville on Thursday of last week, they discovered near Thomas' place, on the Trinity river, about five miles above the mouth of the South Fork, where the Indians had but a very short time previous, slaughtered some cattle. In passing through a field belonging to that place they came upon a party of Indians, consisting of bucks and squaws, enjoying a meal from the beef they had just killed.

An attack was immediately made upon the Indians which resulted in the killing of two bucks and the capturing of two revolvers besides numerous other articles, among which was a soldier's blouse and a small sum of money. They also took two squaws but afterwards released them. They then resumed their march and while in the act of crossing the South Fork, they in turn were attacked by the Indians, who were posted at different points on the hill sides commanding the crossing. Two men were wounded at the first fire. As soon as could be done, Capt. Miller extricated his men from the exposed position they were in. In doing so, however, the mules which he had along—three of which were packed with the camp equipage, blankets, provisions, the U. S. mail, etc.—were stampeded, and the three last mentioned fell into the hands of the Indians. The others were recovered. What number of Indians was engaged in this attack—what loss they sustained or whether any effort was made after Capt. Miller and his men had got out of reach of the fire that was concentrated upon them, we are not advised.

We understand that immediately upon the intelligence of this affair reaching Fort Gaston Capt. Ousley with a detachment of men started in pursuit of these Indians.

The wounds received by the two soldiers mentioned, we understand, are not serious.
