

Another Chapter of Indian Barbarity.

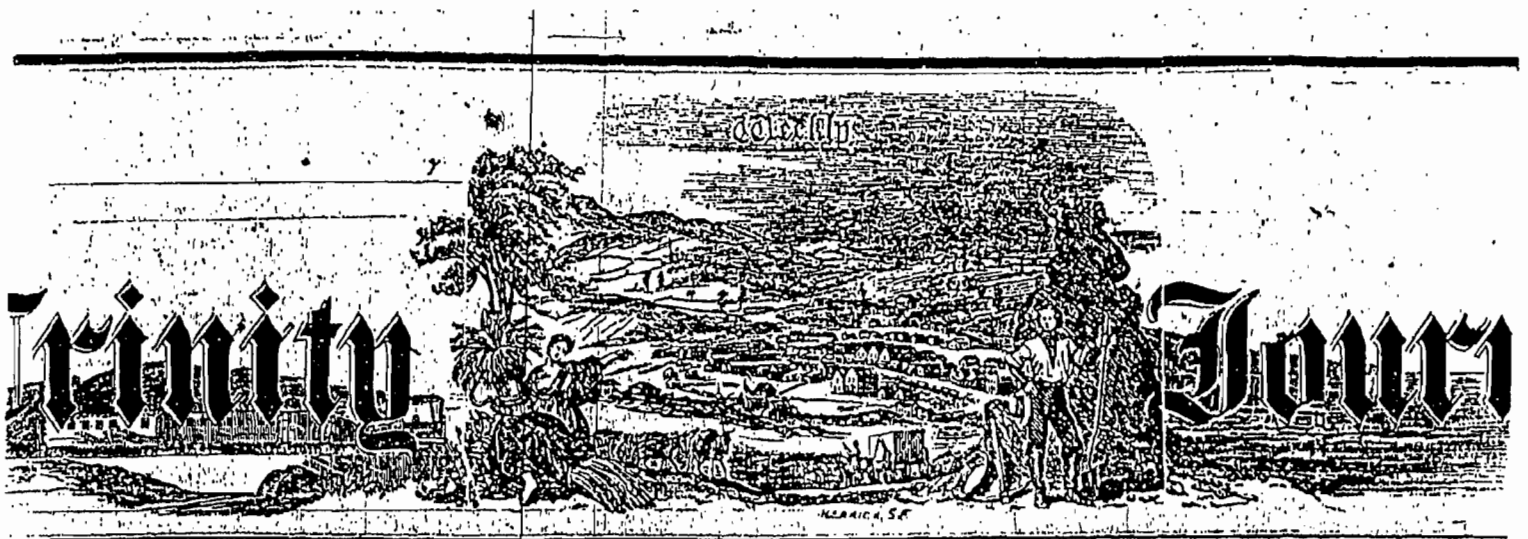

The Humboldt Times of Nov. 16th has reached us. It brings the account of another Indian-outrage in that county. On the morning of the 7th Mr. Brehmer, John Stuart, Christian and Henry Lemcke, and another man, all residing at, and guarding stock in the neighborhood of Brehmer's, on Mad. river, started out in different directions to look after stock. Returning in the evening, and when some four miles from the house, Henry Lemcke was shot in the back by a concealed Indian. He fell from his horse in an unconscious condition, and when his senses returned it was to find himself surrounded by savages, who had stripped him of all his clothing. He feigned death, and the Indians left, but before doing so one more devilish than the rest, turned and fired a shot from his revolver at the wounded man's head, which happily did not further disable him. When they had gone he started home in a naked condition, and faint from loss of blood. He had gone but a little distance when he met his brother's horse running away. He succeeded in catching the horse and rode to the house, when he found that none of his comrades had returned. Starting for a neighbor's, some miles away, he met Brehmer and his companion, who knew nothing of what had been going on. They returned to Brehmer's house, where every attention was given young Lemcke, but his wound was mortal, and he died before-morning.

The next day Capt. Werk, and a detachment of his company found the dead bodies of John Stuart and Christian Lemcke near where Henry was shot. The Times' informant says that Stuart's nose was torn off, his eyes gouged out, lips and ears cut off, arrows stuck in his flesh, and his body most indecently and inhumanly cut up and mangled."

By the Humboldt mail, on Wednesday night, we received the following letter from a friend at Arcata, giving the details of a spirited fight that occurred between volunteers and Indians about three miles from Pardee's ranch last Sunday:

ARCATA, Nov. 18, 1861.

FRIEND GORDON:—A detachment of fourteen volunteers, of Capt. Werk's command, attacked a band of Indians yesterday morning, some three miles from Pardee's ranch, and after a severe fight of two hours and forty minutes, were compelled to withdraw, the Indians having been Weaverville, California, Saturday, November 23, 1861.

NOW OPENING FAMILY GROUPS (A Familiar Letter from Betty Holman) [From the New York Evening Post]