INDIAN TROUBLE — The Shasta Courier says that, the Indians in the Cow Creek Country have again assumed a hostile attitude towards the whites. — Within the past four or five days they have stolen from the ranches about one hundred head of stock, among them some very fine horses and mules. Mr. Long of Shasta, has lost some ten of fifteen of his most valuable mules.

On Thursday last, the Indians, in large numbers visited Church Town, on the east side of Sacramento River, and ran the whites away from the place. The people of Church Town had, on the day previous, pursued and killed several of the savages while making their way to the mountains with a lot of stolen property.

A letter from Dr. E. L. Lane, the Arctic explorer, to the Governor of the Hedden's Bay Company, gives account of the discovery of a new island at the head of the Bay, and the settlement of persons thereon. The island is called 'Lane's Island,' and is situated in the Bay of Naples, off the coast of South America. The island is of great moment to the Hedden's Bay Company, as it is the most westerly point of the continent, and will be of great importance in connecting the Company's trade with the United States. A party of persons have been sent out to the island, and they are now preparing to settle there. The island is rich in minerals, and will be of great value to the Company. The Hedden's Bay Company has long been known for its enterprise and commerce, and is one of the most successful companies in the United States. The company has a large trade with the Eastern and Western parts of the country, and is well known for its promptness and accuracy in paying its debts. The company is now in a prosperous condition, and is well calculated to meet any emergency that may arise.
