

THE INDIAN RESERVATION NORTH — The Sacramento Indian is visited by Mr. John Perry, who has just come down from the Indian Reservation in Colusa county, twenty-five miles west of Tehama, that there are now some nine hundred members of the various tribes from the vicinity, congregated there. They have been industriously employed in tilling the soil, and have already ploughed three hundred acres, which has been sown with wheat. The Indians are still actively engaged in ploughing and sowing, and attending to various agricultural pursuits.
