Washington's Farewell Address.
It is stated by Dr. G. W. Cyclopedia of American Literature, that of all Washington's writings, the most important is his Farewell Address, which is one of the best specimens of American literature. It is a model of plainness and simplicity, and is a fitting monument to the great statesman. It is a model of plainness and simplicity, and is a fitting monument to the great statesman. Art Hour at the Old Play Ground.
BY HENRY MONTAGUE.
Just an hour (oh day, John,
To be the old 'hook stream,
Where you were school-boy in old times,
When an invalid was ailing;
The hook is choked with fallen leaves,
The pond is dead as stone,
I scarce believe that you would know
The dead old place to-day.
