Sacramento Transcript, Number 150, 24 October 1850 — IUnsous, Odd Fellows aud Citizcna. [ARTICLE]

Masons, Odd Fellows and Citizens.

One year ago the two orders above named united together to provide a place for the indigent sick. To this they were encouraged by the citizens in several public meetings, held for the purpose of raising subscriptions.

Until the present, it has had in its wards, with the exception of a few weeks, from five to twenty sick. All who applied were admitted; from the entire number not over five hundred dollars have been paid by themselves or friends. It has depended upon voluntary contributions and the aid of the two Orders; but the burthen has fallen upon comparatively few, with the exception of what was so generously secured for us by the benefits of the two Theatres of this city. Many subscriptions have never been paid, and there has been a want of general support that has greatly embarrassed us, and compelled us to close for a short time. The total amount expended and due by us to the present is . . . $31,436 19
The amount paid, including city bonds, 17,010 70

Leaving an indebtedness of . . . $14,425 44

For a large portion of this the Trustees are sued, and for the payment of the whole the credit and honor of the entire community, especially of the two Orders, are pledged. We therefore appeal to the brethren and public to come to our aid, and each ren and public to come to our aid, and each contribute a portion, and in thirty days we may get out of debt and go on. Many are now living who, but for the help we afforded, would have been buried. Such, if able, are desired to settle the claims against them. They and their friends owe a debt which should be cancelled.

For all, the Institution has in their place "relieved the sick and buried the dead," and all should help us.

Trustees.—Wm. Grove Deal. S. G. Hastings, N. C. Cunningham, A. M. Winn, John F. Morse, W. N. Doughty. J. Bigler.

MURDER.—We learn, says the Marysville Herald, from Mr. Ford, who has just returned from Butte Creek, that on Wednesday week, there was a man murdered by Indians, on the west branch of Feather River, near Kellen's old trading post. There were two brothers occupying a tent; one of them was sick and the other out at work; they killed the latter by striking him on the head with some heavy instrument. The next morning a party of about twenty men went in pursuit of the Indians. They found them about two or three miles from the Post, in a canon, and killed seven or eight Indians, including two or three squaws, and wounded some others. While the party was out in pursuit, an Indian went up to the camp where there were some sick men, and shot one of them in the breast with an arrow. Some of the miners are becoming alarmed, and are leaving Butte Creek and the neighborhood of the murder.

FROM THE NORTH.—A correspondent from the Feather River mines writes to the Marysville Herald as follows:—New developments have been made within a few days ments have been made within a few days towards the head of Butte Creek ; and I saw a gentleman two days ago who had spent the summer on the Shasta, who assured me that the discoveries there were equally as good as those on the Yuba, Nelson's Creek, North Fork of Feather and its affluents. Another season will bring to light a portion of the deposits north of Feather River, and in that large extent of country there is yet room for the great influx of immigrants which has come into the country this season.

FROM STOCKTON.—We find the following under the head of Theatrical in the Stockton Times :

Our readers will be much gratified to learn that our able caterer for the public amusements has returned with a most efficient corps to Stockton. The following ladies and gentlemen comprise the company: Mr. and Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. Mestayer, (celebrated in Boston,) Mrs. Mansfield, Mr. Daly, (well known in New York,) Mr. Coad, of the New Orleans stage, Mr. Fairchild, (a comedian—a diamond of the first water,) Mr. McClosky, (an old Stocktonian,) Mr. Snow, Mr. Harris, Mr. Vinsau, (comedian,) Mr. Rowe, Mr. Cole, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Thalimer.

Now, ye Stocktonians, give them a jovial welcome! Fill the theatre, and their purses. They open with "The Rent Day" and "The Youthful Queen," as good a selection as could have been made.
