

Our "fighting man," Frank Stone, well known to the community as a trust-worthy, whole-souled gallant fellow, leaves us for a time—having volunteered as principal Wagon-Master and Chief of the Commissariat, to the expedition against the Indians. We will bet high on our Frank's distinguishing himself in the varied and responsible duties devolving upon him in his new capacity. He has always had a hankering after the crumbs that fall from Uncle Sam's table.
