Later from the Lower Country—Arrival of the Sea Bird.

The steamer Sea Bird, Captain Haley, arrived from San Diego (which place she left on the evening of the 13th instant) and intermediate ports, last evening. She has made the voyage to San Diego and back, touching at all the intermediate ports, in less than six days.

We are indebted to Purser Wilkinson for the passenger list and other favors.

The Sea Bird brings a large number of passengers, whose names will be found under the proper head. Among them we notice those of Gen. Bear, Capt. Coutts, and Dr. Griffin.

We have dates by this arrival to the 13th from San Diego, and to the 14th from Los Angeles. The news is unimportant.

The detachment of U. S. troops destined to re-establish the post at the junction of the Gila and Colorado, left San Diego on the 9th inst., and were expected to reach their destination in about fifteen days. It is understood that they go out well prepared to punish the Yumahs severely for the outrages perpetrated by that tribe on the emigrants.

Several different communications from Los Angeles have been received at San Diego, warning the citizens against a band of robbers who have left that vicinity for Lower California, and now said to be at Temecula. It has caused no little solicitude among the rancheros. They have brought their families into town, run their horses, &c., into some private and secluded orge of the mountains not easily to be found by the robbers, and fear themselves to return to their ranches. Those of them disposed to plant have lost the season entirely, by such stampedes. It appears that the place cannot rest in peace and quietude for a month at a time. These fears, which are too true and well-founded, not to be heeded, have seriously injured the agricultural portion of the community this season.

Several serious affrays have recently occurred at Santa Barbara, but we can get no satisfactory accounts of them. On the 14th inst., two Mexicans quarrelled, and one was killed by stabbing. On the same day an American attempted to shoot a hotel keeper, but fortunately his weapon missed fire.

We take the following intelligence from the San Diego Herald :

Hon. J. R. Bartlett, Commissioner on the part of the United States, under the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, to run the boundary line between the United States and Mexico, arrived at this place from Sonora Sunday night last, on the steamship Oregon.

Mr. Bartlett crossed the country from Ures to Guaymas, where he took a pilot boat and coasted down to Acapulco. From this latter point he shipped to this place. He arrives in a very delicate state of health. At Ures he was attacked with the typhoid fever and detained nearly three months, which accounts for his long delay, already beginning to occasion lively solicitude for his safety among his friends.

Gen. Conde, the Mexican Commissioner, was attacked with the same fever, and died at Arispe on the 19th of December. It was very prevalent in Sonora, and killing numbers of people at the time Mr. Bartlett left.

The two Commissioners had gone into Sonora to purchase provisions for the parties of the separate Governments engaged in surveying the Gila. Owing to the great scarcity of such commodities, amounting almost to destitution, they were unable to succeed in the object of their visit. Finally, after traversing the principal part of the State, exposed to its many dangers from disease and hostile Indians, a party were fitted out by Mr. Bartlett, and dispatched to meet Mr. Gray on the Gila. This party not starting from Ures until the 16th of December, of course did not reach Mr. Gray, who, as before stated, arrived here with his party on the 8th of January.

A petition, requesting the President to appoint an ...petition, requesting the President to appoint an early day for the assembling of the Land Commissioners in Los Angeles, has been circulated in that vicinity, and has obtained the signatures of most of the land proprietors.

LATER.—The party of Mr. Bartlett, who came overland by way of the Gila, Colorado and the Desert, from Ures, arrived in this place on Wednesday afternoon, having lost nearly all their animals by death. They found water on the margin of the Desert by digging.

The forty-two hundred sheep abandoned by James White on the Desert, and to recover which a party, with their owner at the head, had gone back, were not successful in their object. Many of the sheep had died, and what remained were driven off by the Yumas.

The gentlemen just arrived, like most other travellers

The gentlemen just arrived, like most other travellers on this route, were quite destitute of provisions before striking the ranches. The last hundred and fifty miles of their journey was performed principally on foot.

The party consists of Dr. Thomas H. Webb, J. C. Cremony, George Thurber, H. C. Pratt, John Pratt, laborers, and servants.
