The party of forty persons who had started in hot pursuit of the Indians who recently murdered Capt. Gillmore, on Indian Creek, had returned. They went as far as the South Fork of Trinity, but owing to the continued inclemency of the weather, it was deemed impracticable to pursue the search farther. On the night before they started back, a great number of arrows were thrown into camp, slightly wounding one of the party. The Indians followed the trail of the party on their return, and the night after they reached home, six mules were stolen from the neighborhood.

Indian disturbances have been of frequent occurrence during the past few weeks on Trinity river.

A man named Carey, from Maryland, was attacked by a grizzly a few weeks since on the Trinity, and so severely injured that he died in a few hours.

A row occurred in Shasta City on Sunday last between friends of the rival candidates for Sheriff. A merchant named Livingston, during the melee shot another man in the knee, whereupon the friends of the latter broke into his store and finding Oppenheimer, his partner, beat him severely.
