From San Joaquin.

The Republican, of Wednesday, is received through Gregory's Express.

The Alleghanians gave their first concert in Stockton, on Tuesday evening. The Republican compliments their performances in the highest terms.

The Republican gives the following particulars of Indian disturbances on the head waters of the Merced :

A party of eight miners left Coarse Gold Gulch, about the middle of May, on a prospecting tour to the Upper Sierra head waters of the Merced. After travelling about seventy miles they were suddenly surrounded and attacked by a body of Indians belonging to the Yosemoty tribe, who killed two of their number, named Rose and Shurborn and wounding one Joseph Tudor. The party then fled, as their arms and ammunition were out of order. After travelling five days without provisions, they arrived at Coarse Gold Gulch, on the 2d inst., in an almost famished condition. A party of forty men immediately mustered and started out to chastise the Indians. They found the bodies of the two murdered men and buried them ; the Indians all the time taunting them with threats of defiance. After some manœuvering the Indians crossed the river, which being very high, the party did not wish to pursue them further, and returned.

It is feared that the Kings River Indians and the Kaweahs are in league with the wild tribes in the mountains, if so, we may anticipate trouble.

Capt. Moore's Company of U. S. Infantry, stationed at Fort Miller on the San Joaquin, is now en route for the scene of the murders. Maj. Savage will also accompany the command with a few select volunteers. It is their intention to establish a Military Post in Yosemoty Valley.
