

Gen. Tomas, the chief, or "big Indian" of the various tribes, "laying round loose" about here, visited to-day and called at our office yesterday.

We asked him, if he had read the Albion of California of the 12th inst., (in which we are irreverently spoken of as a "bug-hand organ," or something of that sort) to which he replied, "Hijaluma cacah go whoosh tongo hugag," which the interpreter rendered, "Am I a d—d Jack-ass, that I should take that paper?" We acknowledged the justice of his sarcasm and the respectable old aborigine left our office chuckling, as he sang the first stanza of the war song of his noble race:

O! ukant getahedo fuskem blerus sellem onander
