We regret to receive the intelligence of the death of Mr. Jacobs, who formerly carried on business in this city as a painter. He died on board the Tennessee, when she was four days from San Francisco.

We call especial attention to the advertisement of the Fulton market. We hope that the enterprising proprietors will get a fair share of the public patronage.

LIEUT. BEALE'S PROPOSITION.—Lieut. Beale has kindly supplied us with a resume of his proposition for the government of the Indian Population. The proposal has our cordial concurrence, thinking as we do that it is exactly suited to the emergencies of the case:

“In the first place, I propose a Military Post, to be established on reservations for the convenience and protection of the citizens. These reservations to be regarded as military reservations, or government reservation. The Indians to be invited to assemble within these reserves. A system of discipline and instruction to be adopted by the agent who is to live at the post. Each reservation is to contain a military establishment, the number of troops being in proportion to the population of the tribes there assembled. The expenses of the troops to be borne by the supplies, the produce of Indian labor.

The reservations to be made with a view to a change in location, when increase of white population may make it necessary.

A change of present Indian laws, to be made so as to suit the condition of this State and the proposed policy.

A new steamer, named the Marysville,
made her appearance at our wharf yesterday.
