

tobacco, rice, cotton, &c. The Pimos have for a number of years cultivated the cotton plant, and it produces as fine a staple as any in our Southern Atlantic States.

SOLOMON PICO.—This noted scoundrel is now lying quite ill at Santa Tomaso, in Lower California, and incapable of pursuing his profession of horse stealing.

EL SENOR DON TOMASO.—The Dieguenian Indian who has from time to time rendered such good service to the Americans has recently been elected Captain General of his tribe, and as an emblem of his authority displays the American colors from a staff erected near his house in the mountains, and boasts that the ensign was presented to him on his recent visit to San Francisco, by Gen. Hitchcock, who, according to his account is "big gente," and lives in a large house in San Francisco.—S. D. Herald.

The Steamer Daniel Moore left our city yesterday with the view of towing the R. K. Page down the river. It is however a matter of doubt whether they will succeed or not. As she has already sunk below her guards, and is resting on the ground. The supposition is that she is a total wreck.

The river for some distance up and down was dredged, with the view of finding the remains of Capt. and Lieut. Moore, but without success. No vestige has been discovered of them.

Mr. Gilman Felows, the Clerk, whom we stated was so seriously injured, died yesterday in Marysville.

Several persons on the Dana were looking at the Page when she exploded. They could not distinguish whether the object seen thrown out by the explosion was
