

“flood and field” to which “Hero” was party, one occurred of a somewhat laughable turn: “Hero” was a thorough-bred, and trained in Virginia for the turf. Bishop Soule was on his way to Augusta, Ga., to attend the session of the S. C. Conference. He reached the suburbs of the city at a time when the races were in full blast. Passing the course just as the excitement of the race was at its height, “Hero” forgetful for the moment of the change in his fortunes—forgetful that he carried a grave and reverend Bishop—“Cæsarem et Cæsaris fortunas”—suddenly sprang across the ditch, and was in the act of leaping the fence, and taking part in the ignoble strife of the turf, when his master, by the most strenuous exercise of the powers of hand and voice, succeeded in preventing him. If a Methodist Bishop, nolens volens, had ridden a race that day, and won the field, it would have been a new thing under the sun.

MORE TROUBLE WITH THE INDIANS.—The Indians of both the North and the South appear again, as the summer approaches, to have a belligerent inclination. On Wednesday last an Indian fight occurred in Yolo county, between a party of Indians who had been stealing horses and cattle, and a party of white men who had gone in pursuit of their stock, in which four Indians were killed and several wounded.

The San Diego Herald also says that there is trouble among the Dieguinos Indians in that county in consequence of the re-appointment, by Superintendent Beale, of old Tomas, as Captain General of the tribe. We have seen communications from La Mesa, in the vicinity of the Dieguinos Indians, stating that they manifest great dissatisfaction at having old Tomas thrust upon them again, and that they even threaten rebellion.

We have again an account of a difficulty between the Indians and whites in one of the northern counties, when twenty-one Indians were killed.

SUICIDE.—A man named George Gallaway, says the Sun, committed suicide, by hanging himself in the boat-yard of Mr. Pope, near Market and Battery streets, Monday morning. He was about 50 years of age; and when discovered, the body was yet warm.

THE LARGEST MAIL ever taken to Sacramento, arrived at that city on Tuesday. The State Journal says that upwards of 10,000 letters and 7,000 papers were received.

THE WINTER has been unusually severe both in Europe and the Atlantic coast of this continent. The London Times regards it as ominous, and refers to the extraordinary season that followed Napoleon's invasion of Russia.
