

rett, committed suicide, in a room at Wilson's Exchange, on Thursday night last, by taking poison. He had locked himself in, and was not discovered till Saturday morning, when the offensive smell of his rapidly decomposing body arrested the attention of the chambermaid, and his door was broken open. He was lying at full length upon his bed when discovered. He was the agent of the house of Wells, Fargo & Co., at Jackson, in Amador county, and from a note which he penned just previous to his death, his determination to destroy himself was arrived at on account of a paragraph in an interior paper, reflecting upon his honesty. A post mortem examination was held on the body of the deceased, by which it was proven that he had taken a large dose of prussic acid. So says the Sun.

NOME LACKEE.—This Indian Reservation, we are informed, is in a flourishing condition—the large number of Indians now resident there pursuing most industriously their daily avocations, seemingly with perfect contentment and happiness. We had the pleasure of meeting Col. T. J. Henly, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, at Tehama, on Saturday last. He left for Nome Lackee on the following morning. Gen. Denver was also expected to arrive at Tehama on Sunday, on his way to the Reservation.—Shasta Courier.

This article has been automatically clipped from the San Joaquin Republican 8 August 1855, organised into a single column, then optimised for display on your computer screen. As a result, it may not look exactly as it did on the original page. The article can be seen in its original form in the page view.